Annex to the note verbale dated 4 September 2012 from the Permanent Mission of the Republic of Korea to the United Nations addressed to the President of the General Assembly

Candidature of the Republic of Korea to the Human Rights Council, 2013-2015

Voluntary pledges and commitments pursuant to General Assembly resolution 60/251

I. Introduction

1. Having served for two terms as a member of the Human Rights Council, from 2006 to 2011, the Republic of Korea has decided to present its candidature to the Human Rights Council for the term 2013-2015 at the elections to be held by the General Assembly in New York in 2012.

2. The Republic of Korea attaches the utmost importance to human rights as a universal value and has placed highest priority on the advancement of human rights in the pursuit of its national and foreign policy goals. In addition, the Government of the Republic of Korea is fully committed to the promotion and protection of human rights around the world, in the firm conviction that respect for human rights is a prerequisite for peace, security and sustainable development.

3. As a State party to the following seven core international human rights instruments, including most of their optional protocols, the Government of the Republic of Korea strives to implement the provisions of the relevant conventions:

- International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination (1978)
- International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights (1990)
- International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (1990)
- Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women (1984)
- Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment (1995)
- Convention on the Rights of the Child (1991)
- Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (2008).

4. At the Human Rights Council, the Government of the Republic of Korea has been playing an active role in human rights advocacy around the globe by constructively participating in a wide range of discussions and programmes for the promotion of all aspects of human rights. The Korean Government has fully engaged itself in the entire universal periodic review process in good faith, including the follow-up to the recommendations, while actively participating in the sessions of the Working Group on the Universal Periodic Review. In addition, the Republic of Korea maintains a productive partnership with the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights and cooperates fully with the special procedures of the Human Rights Council, to which it has issued a standing invitation. In line with its positive engagement at the Council, it also actively participated in the process of the review of the Human Rights Council, taking part in the effort of the international community to transform the Council into a more effective and credible body.

5. Furthermore, in the conviction that human rights is best served by democracy and democratic governance, the Korean Government has played a leading role in the formation of the Community of Democracies. It has subsequently played a key role in the work of the Community as a member of the Governing Council and Executive Committee of the Community.

6. The National Human Rights Commission of the Republic of Korea, established in November 2001, is an indispensable institution for the promotion and protection of human rights. Accredited with "A" status by the International Coordinating Committee of National Human Rights Institutions, the Commission continues to make meaningful contributions to the promotion and protection of human rights at the national level: it investigates and provides remedial measures for human rights violations, raises public awareness, and recommends legislative, institutional or policy initiatives related to human rights.

7. In addition, the Republic of Korea is implementing its second national action plan for the promotion and protection of human rights, for the period 2012-2016, in accordance with the recommendation made in the Vienna Declaration and Programme of Action. Covering 209 tasks relating to various aspects of human rights, the national action plan outlines the Korean Government's commitment to better human rights protection in line with its international human rights obligations.

8. The Government of the Republic of Korea has also enacted new laws and adopted legal amendments to ensure the advancement of human rights in a wide array of fields which include:

- Gender equality (the implementation of gender impact assessments in pan-governmental policy formulation and a gender-responsive budgeting system)
- The protection of vulnerable groups (a full-fledged revision of the Child Welfare Act for better prevention of child abuse, the enactment of the Act on Welfare Support of Children with Disabilities, the enactment of the Refugee Law and revisions to related law to ensure stronger punishment for the sexual violence against children)
- Non-discriminatory measures for foreigners residing in the Republic of Korea (the establishment of the First Basic Plan for Policies on Foreigners, 2008-2012, revisions to the Local Election Act to enable foreigners to have the right to vote in elections for local council members and the heads of local district governments, etc.).

II. Voluntary pledges and commitments

9. In line with its dedication to the noble aim of the promotion and protection of human rights, the Republic of Korea commits itself to the voluntary pledges and commitments set out below.

To further advance human rights at the national level

10. The Republic of Korea is committed to upholding the highest standards in the promotion and protection of human rights, with a strong commitment to human rights as a universal value.

11. The Republic of Korea is committed to fully implementing the provisions of the international human rights instruments at the national level and taking the following steps with respect to the withdrawal of reservations made to and participation in the United Nations human rights instruments in accordance with the recent advancement of human rights in the Republic of Korea, including legal amendments and institutional developments in a wide array of fields:

- Ratifying the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime and the Protocol to Prevent, Suppress and Punish Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children, supplementing the Convention
- Ratifying the 1993 Hague Convention on Protection of Children and Cooperation in respect of Intercountry Adoption and the 1980 Convention on the Civil Aspects of International Child Abduction
- Ratifying the International Labour Organization Maritime Labour Convention (2006)
- Considering the withdrawal of its reservations made to the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (art. 25; subpara. (e))
- Pursuing feasibility studies and other efforts towards becoming a party to the International Convention for the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearance
- Examining the possibility of accession to the Optional Protocol to the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment.

12. The Republic of Korea is committed to cooperating and working closely with the United Nations human rights treaty bodies, intensifying efforts to implement their recommendations, and ensuring the timely submission of national reports under the human rights instruments to which the Republic of Korea is a party.

13. The Republic of Korea is committed to strengthening the implementation of the second national action plan on human rights, for the period 2012-2016, in a transparent and accountable manner, thereby making real progress towards better enjoyment of human rights in the Republic of Korea.

14. The Republic of Korea is committed to strengthening efforts to promote and protect the rights of the vulnerable, including women, children and the disabled, so that they can equally enjoy their human rights.

15. The Republic of Korea is committed to enhancing cooperation and partnership with civil society for the advancement of human rights and good governance.

16. The Republic of Korea is committed to strengthening human rights education and training to enhance public awareness and thereby incorporate human rights into the mainstream in all sectors of society.

17. The Republic of Korea is committed to participating in the second cycle of the universal periodic review in an open and constructive manner.

To further contribute to the advancement of human rights at the international level

18. The Republic of Korea is committed to closely cooperating with the international community to advance human rights and address human rights violations around the world, with a strong commitment to human rights as a universal value.

19. The Republic of Korea is committed to cooperating with other Member States in their implementation of human rights obligations through various mechanisms such as technical cooperation, exchanges of experts, and the sharing of experience and best practices.

20. The Republic of Korea is committed to cooperating at the bilateral level, as well as through the United Nations system, for the strengthening of democracy, good governance, the rule of law and respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms.

21. The Republic of Korea is committed to cooperating fully with the treaty monitoring bodies, through the timely submission of periodic reports, and prompt actions, and in good faith on their concluding observations and recommendations.

22. The Republic of Korea is committed to contributing to the ongoing efforts to strengthen the treaty body system.

23. The Republic of Korea is committed to rendering its full support to the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights in its endeavour to elevate standards of human rights observance and advance human rights conditions on the ground.

24. The Republic of Korea is committed to promoting intra- and cross-regional democratic progress and cooperation by providing technical expertise, offering full cooperation to countries requesting assistance in building democratic institutions, and playing an active role within the framework of the Community of Democracies and the Bali Democracy Forum.

25. The Republic of Korea is committed to participating actively in the discussions on the creation of regional and subregional machinery for the promotion and protection of human rights in the Asia-Pacific region.

26. The Republic of Korea is committed to incorporating a human rights perspective into its development policy, including official development assistance programmes, thus contributing to the promotion and protection of human rights, democracy and good governance in partner countries.

To contribute to the work of the Human Rights Council

27. The Republic of Korea is committed to remaining constructively engaged in the activities of the Human Rights Council and supporting the fulfilment of its mandate and functions.

28. The Republic of Korea is committed to continuing its close collaboration with other Member States to make the Human Rights Council a fair and efficient body, so that it can respond to urgent situations of human rights violations in a prompt and expeditious manner.

29. The Republic of Korea is committed to strengthening its efforts to further improve the effectiveness of the universal periodic review, through constructive engagement and dialogue with States under review, and cooperating fully with all the Council's special procedures, to which the Republic of Korea addressed a standing invitation, by rendering the full support necessary for the visit.

30. The Republic of Korea is committed to fostering a culture of cross-regional cooperation within the Human Rights Council, by taking initiatives on constructive intergroup dialogue and compromise, thus enabling the full implementation of its mandate and functions.

Programme budget for the biennium 2012-2013

Standards of accommodation for air travel

Report of the Secretary-General

Summary

The present report of the Secretary-General on the standards of accommodation for air travel is submitted in accordance with General Assembly resolutions 42/214, 45/248 A, 53/214, 63/268 and 65/268 and decisions 44/442 and 46/450, as well as decision 57/589, in which the Assembly requested the Secretary-General to submit a report to it on a biennial basis. The present report provides information on standards of accommodation for air travel for the two-year period ended 30 June 2012 and comparative statistics for the two-year period ended 30 June 2010, as well as trend analyses for the past 10 years.

I. Introduction

1. The United Nations standards of accommodation for air travel are governed by a series of General Assembly resolutions and decisions, including resolutions 42/214, 45/248 A, 53/214, 63/268 and 65/268 and decisions 44/442, 46/450 and 57/589. Pursuant to the discretionary authority vested in the Secretary-General to authorize exceptions to air travel on a case-by-case basis and business-class travel by air in special circumstances that warrant it, the Secretary-General promulgated administrative instruction ST/AI/2006/4 for the purpose of implementing the various staff rules relating to the standards of accommodation for air travel and the exceptions thereto.

2. In the past, certain categories of exceptions to the standards have been established, including, but not limited to, the following: travel of eminent persons; travel of prominent individuals who are donating their services to the Organization free of charge; travel under circumstances that have been deemed to be arduous or under which, for medical reasons, it has been deemed appropriate to upgrade the accommodation of air travel; travel of the security officials travelling with the Secretary-General, his spouse or his personal representatives; and travel under circumstances when the normal standard of accommodation is not available and it is considered prudent to authorize an upgrade.

3. In its resolution 63/268, the General Assembly endorsed the recommendations contained in the report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions (A/63/715) which, inter alia, called for future reports on this matter to contain analysis of the trends in the number of exceptions and provide analysis of the trends for the past 10 years and possible explanations as appropriate.

4. In its resolution 65/268 of 4 April 2011, the General Assembly endorsed the recommendations contained in the report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions (A/65/632) in which the Committee requested, inter alia, that the travel data of the United Nations Secretariat and other United Nations entities be combined in one table showing all authorized exceptions for the respective time periods (see tables 1 and 2 below). In the same resolution, the Assembly also decided to extend to the Deputy Secretary-General the entitlements regarding official travel accorded to the Secretary-General in paragraph 2 of General Assembly resolution 42/214. In this regard, the first-class travel of the Deputy Secretary-General has been reported as an exception for the period up to 3 April 2011 only.

5. In addition to the Secretary-General being entitled to travel first class, it has been the custom and practice of the Organization, since the days of the first Secretary-General, to pay for first-class travel of one member of his immediate family to travel with him on official trips. Given this custom and practice, the official travel of the spouse or other immediate family member of the Secretary-General has been treated as an entitlement and not reported as an exception, and will continue to be treated as such unless explicitly precluded by the General Assembly.

6. Since the General Assembly decided in its resolution 65/268 to extend to the Deputy Secretary-General the entitlements regarding official travel accorded to the Secretary-General, the first-class official travel of the spouse or other immediate family member of the Deputy Secretary-General will be treated in the same manner as an immediate family member of the Secretary-General unless explicitly precluded by the General Assembly.

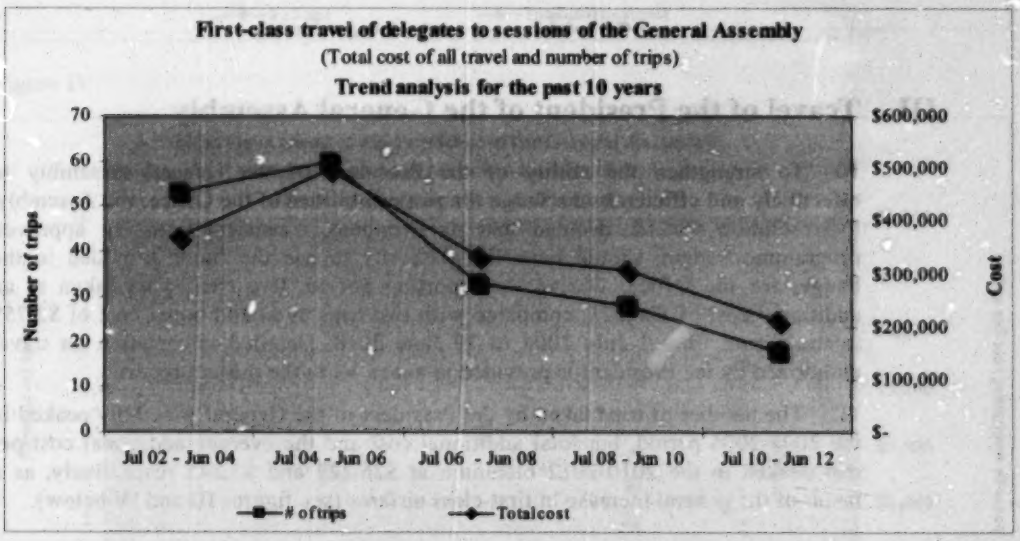
II. Travel of delegations

7. In accordance with General Assembly resolution 42/214, payment of first-class accommodation by air is limited to the heads of delegations of the least developed countries to the regular and special sessions of the Assembly. During the reporting period, 18 first-class trips were approved at a cost of $211,218, compared with 28 trips at a cost of $309,380 for the period from 1 July 2008 to 30 June 2010.

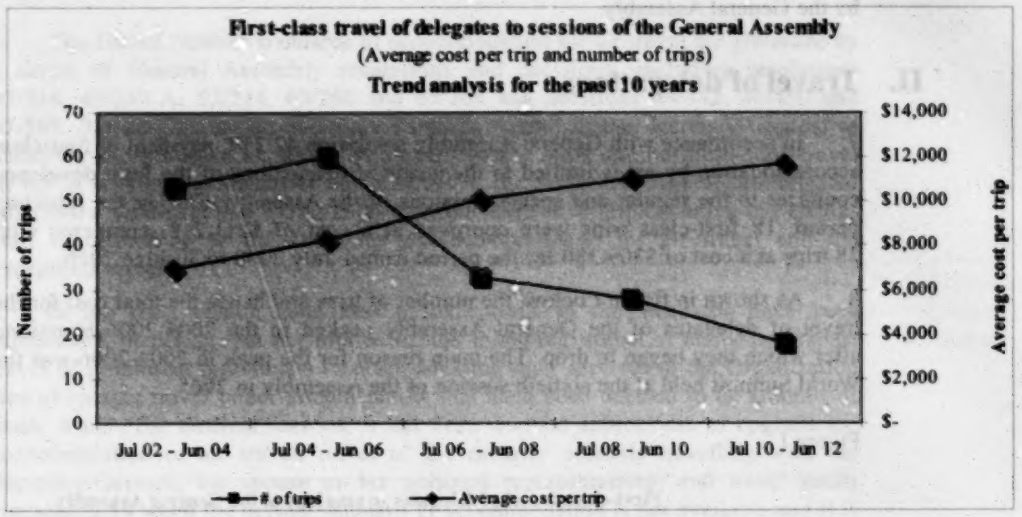
8. As shown in figure I below, the number of trips and hence the total cost for the travel of delegates of the General Assembly peaked in the 2004-2006 biennium, after which they began to drop. The main reason for the peak in 2004-2006 was the World Summit held at the sixtieth session of the Assembly in 2005.

Figure I



9. At the same time, as shown in figure II below, the average cost per trip has been rising steadily. With respect to the increased trend noted in the average trip cost, this pattern is consistent with the global industry trend, owing in large part to the added cost of security measures, fuel surcharges and operating expenses, which have been passed along to the consumer. In addition, certain markets lack competition to drive costs downwards. Currency fluctuation is also a factor.

Figure II



III. Travel of the President of the General Assembly

10. To strengthen the ability of the President of the General Assembly to effectively and efficiently discharge the responsibilities of the Office, the Assembly, by resolution 53/214, decided that its President, consistent with the approved programme budget, should have full authority to use the funds provided in the budget for the Office. During the reporting period, five trips were taken at an additional cost of $26,223, compared with two trips at an additional cost of $2,759 in the period from 1 July 2008 to 30 June 2010. Detailed information on travel authorized by the President is provided in annex VI to the present report.

11. The number of trips taken by the President of the General Assembly peaked in the 2004-2006 period, but total additional cost and the average additional cost per trip peaked in the 2010-2012 biennium at $26,223 and $5,245 respectively, as a result of the general increase in first-class airfares (see figures III and IV below).

Figure III

IV. Exceptions authorized by the Secretary-General

12. By General Assembly resolution 42/214, the Secretary-General was authorized to exercise his discretion in making exceptions to allow first-class air travel on a case-by-case basis. Such discretionary authority is also exercised in accordance with paragraph 4.5 of ST/AI/2006/4 when, in the opinion of the Secretary-General, special circumstances warrant it. In exercising such authority, the Secretary-General takes into consideration, inter alia, the following circumstances:

(a) A medical condition that may necessitate a level of comfort not available in the standard of accommodation to which the traveller is entitled. Such cases are referred to the Director of the Medical Services Division for recommendation. Advanced age alone is not considered sufficient justification to grant an exception;

(b) The normal standard of accommodation is unavailable and, owing to the exigencies of service, the traveller is required to travel on a particular date. Cases also arise when accommodation at the normal standard of entitlement is not available and the cost of daily subsistence allowance while the traveller waits for the next available seat would be greater than the cost of the higher standard of travel;

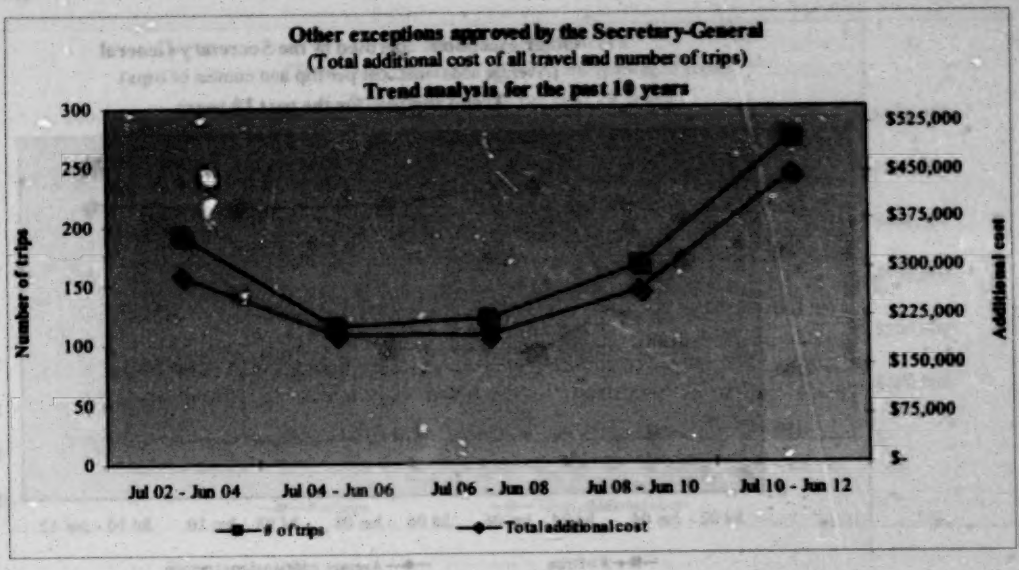
(c) The traveller is considered an eminent person, such as a former Head of State, or an international figure in the political, humanitarian or cultural arenas;

(d) The traveller is a prominent person who is donating his or her services free of charge to the Organization and, in some cases, at a loss in personal income. Such individuals may be accorded the standard of accommodation to which they are accustomed;

(e) The traveller, after completing a full day of work, is required to travel through the night in order to resume work, attend meetings or present a paper at another location on the following morning or immediately upon arrival. Where such cases involve arduous journeys, it has been deemed reasonable that the standard of accommodation accorded the traveller should provide the best rest possible while travelling, or provide the conditions most conducive to work while flying, or both.

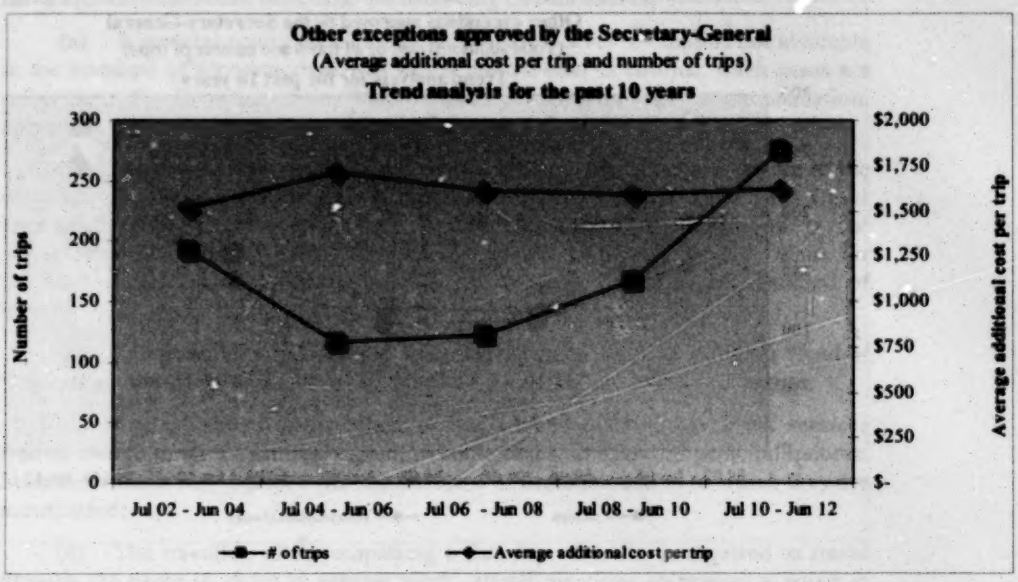
13. As shown in figure V below, the number of trips and the total additional cost of the exceptions authorized by the Secretary-General (such as medical condition, normal standard of accommodation not available, eminent and prominent persons) have increased steadily.

Figure V



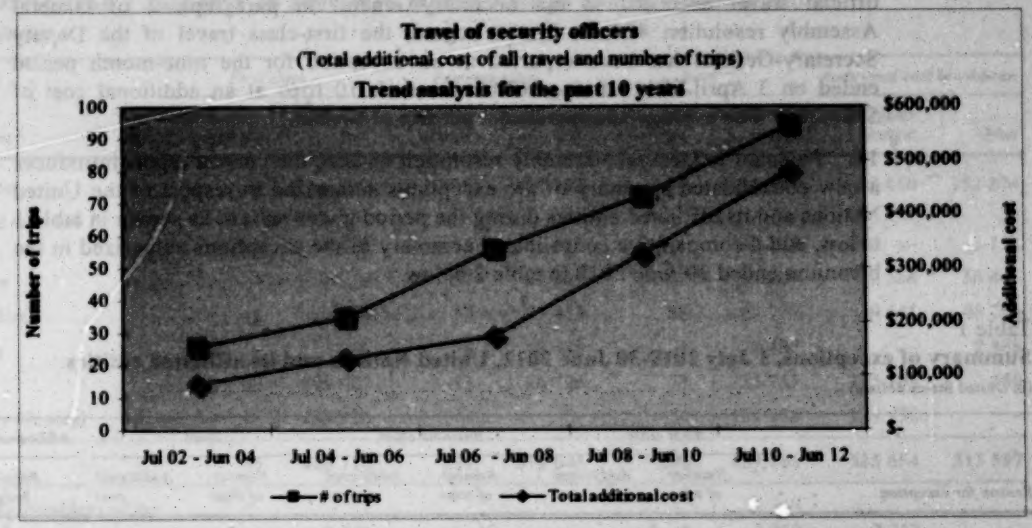
14. Figure VI below indicates that there were insignificant fluctuations in the average additional cost per trip in the last three bienniums, where the average additional cost per trip was $1,609, $1,593 and $1,619 respectively. The steady average additional cost per trip can be attributed to the fact that more offices booked their trips at least two weeks in advance, as requested by the Administration.

Figure VI



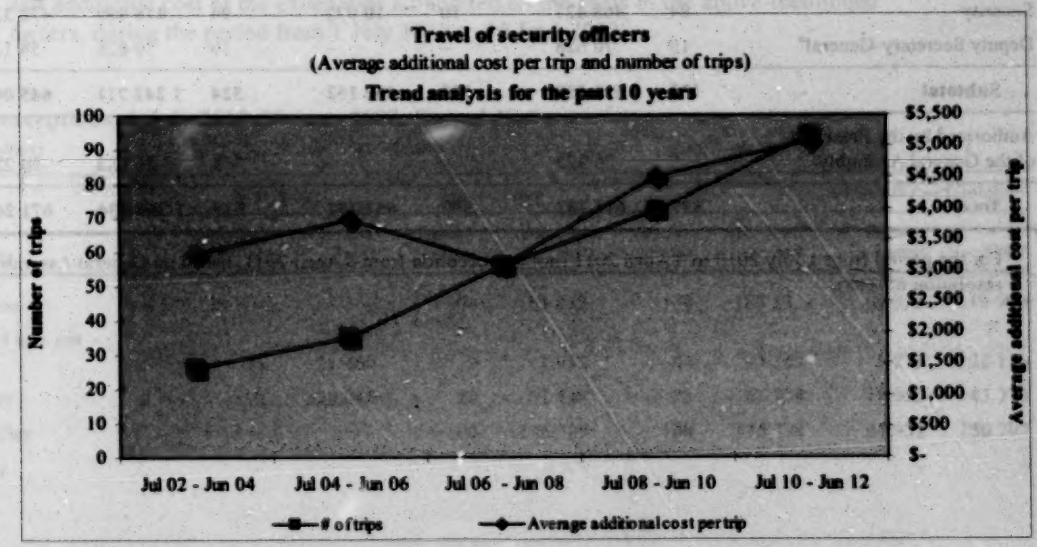
15. Exception is also granted where the traveller provides security services to the President of the General Assembly, the Secretary-General and the Deputy Secretary-General and their spouses or to any other official authorized to travel on behalf of the Secretary-General as his personal representative. In the biennium ended 30 June 2012, there was an increase in the number of trips and associated additional costs incurred by security personnel, with 93 trips at an additional cost of $478,327, compared with 72 trips at an additional cost of $325,103 for the previous biennium ended 30 June 2010, as shown in figure VII below.

Figure VII



16. As shown in figure VIII below, the average additional cost per trip for security personnel has increased since the 2006-2008 biennium. The major reason for this is a higher number of longer trips, combined with the global industry trend of more expensive airfares.

Figure VIII



17. On 18 March 1998, the Secretary-General decided that, as an exception, all travel of the Deputy Secretary-General should be in first class, in keeping with his/her special status. In its resolution 65/268 of 4 April 2011, the General Assembly decided to extend to the Deputy Secretary-General the entitlements regarding official travel accorded to the Secretary-General in paragraph 2 of General Assembly resolution 42/214. In this regard, the first-class travel of the Deputy Secretary-General has been reported as an exception for the nine-month period ended on 3 April 2011, during which she took 10 trips at an additional cost of $70,628 and an average additional cost per trip of $7,063.

18. Pursuant to General Assembly resolution 65/268, the current report introduces a new consolidated summary of the exceptions authorized in respect of the United Nations and its affiliated entities during the period under review, as shown in table 1 below, and a comparative consolidated summary of the exceptions authorized in the biennium ended 30 June 2010 in table 2 below.

21. A summary of the exceptions authorized in respect of other United Nations affiliated entities during the period under review is contained in table 5 below and a summary of those authorized in the biennium ended 30 June 2010 appears in table 6. Details of exceptions authorized for the United Nations Development Programme, the United Nations Children's Fund, the United Nations Institute for Training and Research, the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, the United Nations Environment Programme, and the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime for the current period are contained in annexes VII, VIII, IX, X, XI and XII, respectively.

22. Figures IX and X below indicate that for the other United Nations affiliated entities, the number of trips increased to 146 during the period under review, compared with 72 trips in the previous biennium. The total additional cost increased to $248,575, compared with $108,141 for the previous biennium. However, the average additional cost per trip of $1,703 for the period under review is similar to the average additional cost for the United Nations Secretariat and remains well below the peak average of $2,042 reached in the biennium ended 30 June 2008.
